*Mayville as Viewed By a Cincinnati Correspondent—A Write-
Up of the River From Portsmouth
to This City.*

Sunday's Enquirer.

From South Portsmouth to Mayville is about 50 miles, and two days were consumed in the trip. All along I found the river gushing, it was, for life, the sands along the way white and dry, and the country side suffering from U. S. Everywhere farmers complained of the untoward condition. Crops could not be moved, they said. The railroad was reaping a harvest. Every little station that usually contributed from one to two carloads of general freight in a week was sending out from two to half a dozen cars a day. I found the river landing and storage boats unloading for railroad transportation, all hope of forwarding the freight having been abandoned.

All along the river the scenery was restful and beautiful. The Ohio slopes were covered with a fine second growth of good timber, the foliage now tinged with the tints of autumn. The richest land that lies outdoors can be found along the bottom and up the valley of the Scioto.

Along Brush Creek stretch and about the mouth of the Kinsey were many bad bars that almost entirely dam up the river. Here and there flatboats and coal barges were met with, all high and dry upon the banks or perched upon a bar. At Glen a big bar sets out from the Kentucky side and almost meets a round island in the channel. The cars frequently touched bottom in passing through the channel. At Quincy the bar sets out from the Ohio side, and almost closes the river at the bend.

Along below Stone City the beaches take on the ragged character noticed further up the river, and about one eccentric arm that reach nearly across the channel. The Kentucky side is ever the aggressor, for the reason that the channel oftenest sets over against the Ohio shore, the bank being more yielding on this side. From Stone City westward the hills on the Ohio side increase in altitude, and as night comes on grow blue and misty. The Kentucky hills are yellow and sunburned. Corn shocks cap every hilltop.

Along by Vanceburg the scenery is magnificent, and the river, although shallow, broadens out. No pronounced sandbars break the surface, and but for the broad beaches one after on the bluffs would not suspect the condition of the water. At Concord the big Joe Williams was tied up, resting upon the soft bottom, waiting for the water to rise and release her.

Just by Mauchester, O., a big island is marked on the map. It was cut out by the current long ago, and is farmed. Now there no longer exists an island. Foot by foot the water receded until the channel between mainland and island disappeared. Now the sand is dry, and a drop of water can be found anywhere in the bed. Below the island a rocky bar is exposed, a bar that would stave in the bottom of the unlucky packet that ran upon it.

By far the most important town in Eastern Kentucky is Mayville, which is opposite Aberdeen, O. Mayville is perched upon the bluff and nestles among the hills. It is a banking, manufacturing and commercial center. In the thirties Mayville had a bigger banking capital than did Cincinnati. The river was in a terrible condition here. The ferry-boat could not cross, and about 14 inches of water was all that showed by the mark.

The ferry-boat to Aberdeen plied back and forth to a rock anchored staging in the middle of the river, opposite Aberdeen, where it took on board and discharged its loads. Passengers were ferried to the staging from the Ohio side by means of a flatboat, which was poled by deckhands. The teams forded the river to the staging and were thence ferried across. The Captain of the boat feared that within a few days the teams would ford the river and thus break up his revenue.

On the beach were a number of big coal barges that had not lie by the receding water. They do not lie on an even bottom and were badly wrecked. They will doubtless be total wrecks.

A quaint old place is Mayville. Most of the buildings are nearly a century old. The town has a war history, which, however, we have nothing to do with. O. of Mayville's treasured memories is connected with the school days of General U. S. Grant. A boy named Grant, who attended the old Rand & Richardson Seminary, which still stands upon the hill, but now given over to residence purposes.

It is related that Ulysses was a hard talker—anything but a brilliant talker—characteristics that stuck to him in after life. Mr. C. B. Ryan relates how his uncle and Grant were the dull wits in the debating society, which met for weekly discussions. Two of the best talkers would be appointed to head the class and choose colleagues. Poor Grant and young Ryan were always left to the last and invariably brought up the tail end of the debate, where their convictions were strong and sound, but unvoiced. In after years Grant loved to drift back to the old town and happen in at the debates where as a boy he posed so gloriously.

There are many unique things connected with Mayville. One of these is that antiquity which the gentleman stoutly demurred. Legal terrors did not terrify him. At length he accepted a stupping price for the land, but with the cast-iron proviso that the big elm should forever remain just as it now stands, uncut, untrimmed and unremoved. And there it stands, spreading its generous shade over the station and far over the grounds.

Mayville used to be the center of a busy river commerce. The packets all stopped at the landings and transacted much business there. Today even a flatboat would be proud in the channel. Mr. Ryan tells a story illustrative of the traffic of the river a quarter of a century ago. So many steamers plied up and down that their whistles sounded at all hours of the day and night. Young Ryan had a methodical and statistical mind, and early learned to designate the packets by the sound of their whistles. He got a big blank book, entered the names of all the steamers that came along, and when their whistles were heard he recorded the fact. He never made a mistake. By and by he grew so big that he was sent to the old Rand Seminary. He was heartbroken. Still he was resourceful. His little sister had shared in his statistical compulsion and knew the sounds of the whistles nearly as well as her brother. So the boy every morning opened his book and left it with the little girl. Even in the schoolroom upon the hill, the sound the whistles penetrated, and young Ryan knew what packets were passing. When he got home if little sister had made an error Rome knew it. Today Mr. Ryan might listen until his ears cracked, but no sound of the packets' whistles could greet them.

The views East and West of the Ohio Valley to be obtained at Mayville have been celebrated for over half a century. Here Edward Everett, afterward Minister to the Court of St. James, came in the office to enjoy the view. He climbed Fort Hill, a peculiarly difficult ascent South of the town; that he might look over the surrounding hills. Everybody emulates Mr. Everett and climbs the hill to feast his eyes upon the scene. Mr. Everett possessed in the finest sight in America. Many a time General Grant climbed it in his boyhood days.

Either Everett had mighty stout legs and cast iron lungs or the hill has grown steeper of late years, for it took half an hour for the hardest of us to reach the summit. As I climbed half slipped studies at the Cincinnati School of Phonography after a visit to relatives in this city.

Superintendent Schaeffer says 5 per cent. is added to water bills in Portsmmouth if they are not paid before December 1st, and that all bills are paid at the Water-works office.

Messrs. Eugene A. Robinson and George W. Rogers of this city are witnesses at the Federal Court session at Louisville—the former for the defense and the latter for the prosecution in the somewhat famous Wayne Dameron-Wild Hall cases.

Mr. William T. Martin, the well known confectioner, and Miss Dora L. Buck will marry this afternoon at 8 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. A. J. Williams, aunt of the bride. The ceremony will be by the Rev. E. B. Calk, and at its conclusion Mr. and Mrs. Martin will leave for a visit to the Atlanta Exposition, attended by the well wishes of hosts of friends.

Tomorrow evening Mrs. George L. Cox will entertain at her elegant home on East Third street with a Silver Tea. The hours will be from 5 to 10, and every one who attends must bring not less than a silver quarter. All that is taken in at the door Mrs. Cox will turn over to the ladies of the Episcopal Guild. Supper served free of charge. Mrs. Cox invites every one in the city to attend.

INDICTMENTS DISMISSED.

Messrs. Nat and Ollie Paynter Come Out All Right.

It will be highly gratifying to their many friends in this city to know that Messrs. Nat and Ollie Paynter have been cleared of the charges preferred against them in the matter of the National Bank of Orlando, Fla., of which they were officers.

The indictments, which were procured largely through spivework, have been dismissed by the Department of Justice
at Washington City.

Attorney L. W. Galbraith is recovering from his recent illness.
Cincinnati capitalists have revived the project of building a bridge across the Ohio at Ashland.

Prayer-meeting tonight at the Central Presbyterian Church, and a social immediately at its close.

The residence of Mr. William Myall burned at Mayfield early yesterday morning, together with most of its contents.

Hattie Lewis, colored, got into a row in Cincinnati Sunday night with a woman on account of Hattie being too intimate with the other woman's husband. Hattie tried to escape, but the other woman managed to cut Hattie's throat with a razor. Her husband, Bob Lewis, died last winter while sitting on a doorstep on the Fleming pike. At last accounts she was still alive.

Attention!
All members of Mayville Council No.
12, A. P. A., are requested to meet at their Hall Thursday evening, October 31st, at 7 o'clock sharp. Business of special importance. By the order of the President.

William Setters, who cut Tony Lane,
as reported in yesterday's Ledger, was tried before Squire Brandel and held to appear before the Grand Jury. Bail was fixed at $100.

The alarm at 2:15 yesterday afternoon
was caused by a slight blaze at the residence of Captain Jacob Miller on the Fleming pike, caused by a defective flue.
Damage trifling.

Mrs. Annie Cain has been appointed Administratrix of the late Levi Cain, with George H. Heiser surety. C. L. Hubbard, Ben McClanahan and John Campbell
were appointed appraisers.

Mr. Sherman Ann Will Harry Miss
Ella Holliday This Evening.

Mr. Sherman Ann of this city and Miss Ella Holliday of Dayton will be married at the home of the bride's aunt in the later city this evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Miss Holliday was a former resident of this city, and has many friends here.

The groom is an employee of the Keith-Schroeder Harness Co. and a most deserving young man.

They will make their home in the Fifth Ward.

THIS is THE LAST DAY to REGISTER.

REGISTER TODAY AT COUNTY CLERK'S OFFICE.

By a misunderstanding of charter provisions, Lexington Democrats fear a Republican Board of Aldermen may be elected.

Miss Jane Vivian Goodpastor of Owingsville will wed Mr. Carroll C. Cramalt of Mt. Sterling December 4th. Miss Good-pastor is well known in this city, she having visited Miss Nettie Robinson last summer.

MARRIED IN COVINGTON.

Mr. John Weimer and Miss Nettie
Howe of this City.

Our usual quiet little city is to be socially ruffled with today's social deuce
ment.

The very pretty and stylish daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Howe of West Third street married Mr. John Weimer, the gentlemenly and polite C. and O. official at this point.

Mr. Weimer has been a boarder at the home of Mrs. Howe for the past year, and during this time has wooed and won the youngest daughter of this good couple.

It was no surprise, nor was it an elope-
ment.

The young couple concluded to take the afternoon train yesterday for Covington.
To conclude was to act, and at 7:30 o'clock
last evening, in a Covington church, Miss Nettie Howe became the wife of John Weimer.

The family of the bride are expectat-
ing their return home today at noon.

They will not only receive the paternal blessing but showers of congratulations
from their host of friends in Mayville and Augusta, the latter the home of the groom.

The bride is 31, the groom 33.

ADVERTISED LETTERS.

Those Who Have Missives in the Mayville Postoffice.

Below is a list of letters remaining uncalled for at the Mayville Postoffice for the week ending October 30th, 1895:
Adams, Charley

Williams, Mrs. Lizzie
Collins, Mrs. Michael (col.)
Cristofol, Wilem
Wilson, Mrs. Robert
Croun, Mrs. John
Young, Dr. W. A. (2)

One cent due on each of above.

Persons calling for these letters will please say that they are advertised.

THOS. J. CHESWORTH, Postmaster.

SIXTH WARD TAXES.

Good Citizens Cheerfully Paying Toward the New Schoolhouse.

The handsome new schoolhouse in District No. 3 is approaching completion, and it will be a credit to the entire city
and to every one who has a share in paying for it.

As the citizens of the Sixth Ward will enjoy its advantages, a special tax of 10 cents on the $100 has been levied on the property in that Ward to aid in paying for the new building.

It is needless to say that our friends of the Sixth Ward are paying this tax cheerfully, as they are universally in favor of good Public Schools.

In this respect they are very different from Mr. J. D. Rummans, the so-called Republican candidate for Senator, who pays no taxes, although he boasts of having several thousand dollars stored away!
Poor men with an humble cottage never escape the tax collector; the big wigs do.

Mrs. L. V. Davis will exhibit the balance of the week a handsome line of Trimmed Millinery.

The marriage of Mr. Thomas A. Fitzgerald of Fern Leaf and Miss Nellie C.
Moore, daughter of Mr. Chris Moore of Germanstown, took place this morning at 11 o'clock at the Brookville Catholic Church.

SOCIAL ENTERTAINMENT.

Miss Ethelene Wall Entertains in Honor of Miss Newmyer.

A social entertainment of great beauty and much revelry was the function of Miss Wall to honor Miss Newmyer, the guest of Miss Pickett.

Twenty couples were the guests, and a merry crowd it was. No set form nor stiff ceremonials were had or gone through with. Each basked in the sunshine of his or her enjoyment.

Music, singing and other features to make fun were indulged in.

Among the charming diversions the company were feasted to as sumptuous a repast as a hospitable home table could afford.

At 10 o'clock the dining-room was thrown open, and a large table contained delicious food suited to the palate of every countryman—a Bohemian would be just at home.

The young ladies were beautifully gowned, while the gentlemen were in reception toils.

The daughter of the house—who is versatility taken the form of lovely manner—did the honors with such grace with such charming manner, as to put many to their wits and to know just how so much wit and tact of sweetness and of diplomacy could belong to so young and so favored a daughter.

Each guest felt that she or he was the honored or favored guest, so thorough is Miss Wall's ability to entertain. It was a happy, delightful evening.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

back I noticed that I was walking upon a wealth of fossiliferous rock that would send a geologist crazy. Almost everybody knows that the Valley of the Ohio was once the bed of a vast ocean, and that thousands upon thousands of centuries elapsed before the tops of the hills came above water and the river bed cut out its present channel. I was surprised, however, to find among the thousands of petrified clamshells, periwinkles, scallops, other crustacea, unmistakable fossiliferous coral, in branches and sponge-shaped pieces, pointing to the fact that not only an ocean cover the spot where I stood, but a tropical ocean at that. I gathered a number of specimens of this coral, and took particular pains to carry down with me one chunk of rock, ten pounds in weight, which very nearly caused me to break my neck during my descent.

Arrived at the summit I found the wind blowing a hurricane, so that it was difficult to keep from being wafted bodily over the brink and down into the valley. The view that stretched out to the Eastward was grand and expansive; well worth the half hour's climb to enjoy. To the Westward, however, I could not get a satisfactory view, owing to the smoke from the city.

That view Eastward took in a panorama of over 30 miles in radius. Truly, the river itself was hidden by the hills at the first turn. I got a very satisfactory view, which is here reproduced. I found the descent easy enough—too easy. I slipped at one point and slid 50 feet, bringing with me the debris of centuries, and was deposited in a thicket in a bed of fossilized clam shells.

The advertising columns of THE LEADER speak for themselves. They show that people who know how to advertise know also where to advertise.

All we have ever said of the curative virtues of Ayer's Sarsaparilla sinks into listless indifference when compared with the cures made by the cures which have been benefited by the use of this wonderful blood purifier. Many of the cures seem indeed almost incredible.

SUPPLEMENTAL REGISTRATION.

Number and Completion of Those Booked Yesterday.

Yesterday was the second day for those who were out of the city or who were sick on the regular Registration Day in October to appear before the County Clerk and register.

Below is the number recorded, with their political affiliation:

	Rep.	Dem.	Not Given.
First Ward.....	2	2	2
Second Ward.....	2	2	2
Third Ward.....	2	2	2
Fourth Ward.....	2	2	2
Fifth Ward.....	2	2	2
Totals.....	12	12	12

At the regular registration last month 1,450 registered, as against a total of 1,467 the year before, making the aggregate 17 short of last year; and of these 595 were Republicans, 536 Democrats, 33 scattering and 288 gave no party affiliation.

As of yesterday, and we have so far 628 Republicans, 574 Democrats, and 314 of no party, the increase being 82 over last year's full registration, with to day to go on.

DAMERON ON TRIAL.

Rehearing of the Case in the Federal Court of Louisville.

The old case against Wayne Dameron, charged with using the mails for fraudulent purposes, was begun in the United States Court Monday morning at Louisville. Dameron was tried at the last term of court and the jury failed to agree. The trial of the case will consume four or five days and possibly a week.

At the former trial stenographic reports were taken of the testimony of the large number of witnesses. These reports are being carefully gone over by the attorneys for both sides. The case against Dameron is connected with that of "Wid' Hall, who was convicted at the last term of the Federal Court, and who is now serving a term in the Penitentiary for the crime. Hall, as was proved, secured a large quantity of goods from various dealers throughout the country by writing to them for big bills, including a long list of people as references, among them being several Louisville merchants. Dameron, it is claimed, was a partner in the scheme. Much of the goods was delivered to him, it is claimed.

Another charge is that Dameron was among those who induced Hall, and that he took the goods secured in this way and sold them. Dameron was admitted to bond during the trial.

The scene of the alleged operations is in and about Calticburg.

We respectfully invite the comparison of THE LEADER with any other daily newspaper in all Northwestern Kentucky in any one can find a daily paper printed and published at the Ninth Congressional District that has a larger Circulation, or More Original Reading Matter, we will take pleasure in presenting him with a year's subscription to THE LEADER.

The Monk.

By MATTHEW G. LEWIS, (MONK LEWIS).

Mr. Lewis was a member of the British Parliament, and his name became so popular in England and a hundred years ago that it gained for him the title of "Monk Lewis."

It is a piece of classic composition, and after being out of print for many years it has been republished from the original text. It is far superior to "Monsieur Monks" and books of that character.
